

The Society for Creative Anachronism is a not-for-profit educational group made up of volunteers that bring to life the Medieval and Renaissance eras.

Members of the SCA learn, practice, and teach each other fine arts, practical crafts, and aspects of daily living from before the modern era: fencing and armored combat, cooking and brewing, archery and axe throwing, calligraphy and illumination, sewing and embroidery, spinning and weaving, woodworking and forging metal, dancing and singing, pomp and pageantry.

You are welcome to join us at a weekly practice, informal class, or local meeting — or dive into one of our full-day events, where everyone wears historically-inspired clothing to create an immersive environment.

Learn More and Get Involved

New York Regional Chapter: www.ostgardr.org

Facebook: www.facebook.com/groups/sca.nyc

Email: chatelaine@ostgardr.eastkingdom.org

International Parent Organization: www.sca.org

The Society for Creative Anachronism is a not-for-profit educational group made up of volunteers that bring to life the Medieval and Renaissance eras.

Members of the SCA learn, practice, and teach each other fine arts, practical crafts, and aspects of daily living from before the modern era: fencing and armored combat, cooking and brewing, archery and axe throwing, calligraphy and illumination, sewing and embroidery, spinning and weaving, woodworking and forging metal, dancing and singing, pomp and pageantry.

You are welcome to join us at a weekly practice, informal class, or local meeting — or dive into one of our full-day events, where everyone wears historically-inspired clothing to create an immersive environment.

Learn More and Get Involved

New York Regional Chapter: www.ostgardr.org

Facebook: www.facebook.com/groups/sca.nyc

Email: chatelaine@ostgardr.eastkingdom.org

International Parent Organization: www.sca.org